

For those of us who love a party: imagine Marnie MacLean's lovely Pas de Valse cardigan thrown over a Little Black Dress, out for the evening, perhaps at the opening party for the Andy Holden Exhibit at the Tate Britain (see previous post). This is my purple Pas de Valse (still on the needles) with sparkly sandals, chunky bracelets with a bit more twinkle, and long earrings that tie it all together with purple jewels. The young Michael York look-alike cast in the role of champagne-refreshing waiter is pure fancy, of course.

Pas de Valse at the Tate by farwellclay

Items in this set:

Diane von furstenberg dresses, 278 GBP

Antik Batik Beaded leather sandals, $210

Alexis Bittar 'Hermitage' Crystal Cushion Bangle, $147

